“Discussion

62. Even though Staff has recommended approval of TEP’s proposal for utility-owned residential distributed generation, we believe it is not prudent to approve such a program at this time. TEP has not demonstrated any need for the additional generation capacity that this distributed generation would provide. In addition, the solar distributed generation market in TEP’s service area has been quite robust in recent months which should be reducing TEP’s need for distributed generation capacity. Although, we are not approving this program, this should not be interpreted as our being opposed to utility-owned distributed generation; we are just not convinced that TEP needs such generation at this time.”
